MADE IN TENNESSEE

MANUFACTURING MILESTONES

October 4, 2014 — February 1, 2015

Today's Tennesseans, while not totally abandoning their agricultural heritage, have moved into an age of advanced technology and global competition symbolized by electronics, chemical production, and automobile manufacturing. Tennesseans may wear cowboy hats and listen to the Grand Ole Opry, but at work they are more likely to produce automobiles or sophisticated machinery than to till a small farm or make country crafts...

Come explore why in this new exhibition...

This exhibition is made possible through an educational grant from Alcoa Foundation to highlight Tennessee's manufacturing story—past, present, and future. The grant was awarded in honor of Alcoa Tennessee Operations 100th Anniversary and the announcement of its automotive expansion project on May 2, 2013.
